

FINDING MOJO

By C.S.White

MIGHTY MOJO STUDIOS' IAKE EISSINMANN

Many may see the resemblance of Iake Eissinmann (originally Ike Eisenmann) in 'Tony', the young "alien" in Disney's popular classic family films Escape to Witch Mountain and Return From Witch Mountain, or from the short TV series The Fantastic Journey, among other roles before he moved behind the camera. In his latest adventure, Iake, along with his actress/writer wife Alexi, escaped from L.A. to Orlando four years ago for a less hectic lifestyle, with "no business plan" in hand. In late 2005, the creative duo formed Mighty Mojo Studios, a digital animation company based in Celebration. The Eissinmanns and team of artists are working on the studio's first project, The Mystery of?, a half animation/half live action children's production that seeks to inspire learning in kids through the "mysteries" of the natural world. The title is already under contract for distribution on DVD this summer. It seems they have found their mojo. Eissinmann, fresh off the set from a weekend shoot of live action scenes for the production, took some time to talk with Texture about Mighty Mojo.